I wonder what the shosts think of the changes that have come over Lambeth since the palmy days of the "Spectator," when Addison carried Sir Roger de Coveriey to spend an evening there? They went by water, if you remember, from Temple Stairs, Vauxhall was then called Spring Garden. That delightful antiquarian gossip, Timbs, notes that a glass of Burton ale, and a slice of hung beef, was the supper of that period; cheese cakea and syllabub the earlier fare of Wycherley's day; and punch and ham probably not until the next century. Burton ale and a slice of hung beef suggests either the simplicity or lack of taste (whichever you please) of those days compared with our own. The jounior clerk of a City house taking his fancée to the gardens of Earl's Court or the Crystal Palace would not dream of giving her so poor a meal. If Mr. Addison lived now to entertain a second Sir Roger (where would he find such an one?) he would, I suspect, have ordered the day before a supper that Lucullus might have eaten, and "the mask" who tapped Sir Roger on the shoulder and asked him to drink a bottle of mead with her would have invited him to order a bottle of Moet that of the shoulder and asked him to drink a bottle of mead with her would have invited him to order a bottle of Moet that of the shoulder and asked him to drink a bottle of mead with her would have invited him to order a bottle of Moet that of the shoulder and asked him to drink a bottle of mead with her would a condition of the shoulder and asked him to drink a bottle of mead with her would a condition of the shoulder and asked him to drink a bottle of mead with her would a condition of the shoulder and asked him to drink a bottle of mead with her would have invited him to order a bottle of Moet that of the shoulder and asked him to drink a bottle of mead with her would have invited him to order a bottle of Moet that of the shoulder and asked him to drink a bottle of mead with her would a condition of the down and the proposal and the proposa

The satute Queen's Hall manager must naturally study the requirements of his patrons, and should their taste lead to a preference for foreign music, he cannot do otherwise than supply it. But we will hope that some of the new home compositions will be of a quality to command success and popularity and give a fresh impetus to English composers.

The venerable Philharmonic Society will give 3 concerts late in the autumn, Nov. 4 and 18, and Dec. 2. The directors are no doubt struck with the great musical activity of the times, and feel they ought not to be idle while Richter, Motil, and many others are in the thick of the fray with orchestral concerts. At the first Philharmonic some of his own works will be conducted by Edward Urieg; at the second Herr Mosykowski will introduce new orchestral compositions and his violin concerto; and at the final concert a selection from Humperdinck's opera, "Konigskinder," will be conducted by the composer himself. GENERAL CHATTER.

It is long since we have had a first cleas due, such as that at Paris last Sunday morning between Prince Henri Orleans and the young Count of Turin. There was no make-believe about this encounter, as there generally is in such affairs in these days. Each combatant did his best, and the French Prince took his punishment like a man. Of course the fight settles nothing, but Prince Henri, who has said and written many spiteful hings add and written many spiteful things about the English as well as about the Italians, will probably be a little less ready hereafter to make free with other people's reputations.

There is not much good in duelling, as most of us in this country are apt to think. But it is of some wee, no doubt, or it would hardly have survived down to the end of the 19th century, in spite of the denunciation which has been heaped upon it. We are not likely to see the practice revived among ourselves, but we do feel at times that we want something which would answer the same purpose. An action for libel is, unfortunately, no nerror to people who can pay handsome damages. Cowardly slanderers are not seldom in that position, and meed to be made to feel that when they give unbridled hiberty to their tongues or pens they risk their persons as well as their money.

The Spanish authorities have done wisely in putting the murderer of the late Prime Minister to death within the prison walls at a provincial town. There is nothing your Anarchist enjoys so much as being able to pose before a crowd as a marriyr dying for what he calls his principles. Death is almost robbed of its terrors if he can, but make a speech upon the casfiold, and pase into the next world cryting a woman up why he did and pase into the next world cryting a woman up why he did not know why; it was done or why it should be done.

was done or why it should be done."
Only the other night I asked a policeman on the Embankment whom I saw waking a woman up why he did it. His only excuse was "Oh. I dunno. We always do it." The only definite reply I ever got was from an inspector, who said, "We wake them up and move them on because some of them are dangerous characters." A more ridiculous argument than this I never heard in my life. Because even supposing the person aroused and moved on was a dangerous character, it is quite certain he or she is not dangerous while adaperous while alsep. The only time they can do any harm is while awake and moving about.

But I venture to assert without fear

Of course, as we all know, the trade of this country at present is, as a rule, very good, but unfortunately there are exceptions to every rule, and I am writing this in a district where there is an exception to that rule, and that is in the tin-plate district of South Wales. Yesterday I was at Swansea and Llanelly and the neighbourhood, and the prevailing opinion seemed to be that the Welsh tin-plate industry was "going to the dogs" altogether.

was "going to the dogs" altogether.
Work is very short, and every day there is fresh news of impending stoppages. I am very much afraid the trade union will never be able to keep up even the present rate of wages.
I fancy instead of talking about maintaining the 1874 price list, they must make up their minds to face the altered conditions of 1897.

Surely it is time for a 19th century public and a rational Press to take some steps to stop the so-called "ladies" bicycle records. As a sporting performance Miss Foster's recent ride to Brighton and back in 6 hours 58min. is a marvellous performance, but a man has covered the hilly and trying 106 miles in less time. What can a woman's record awail anybody's while, on the other hand, it must do the girl harm to go through the trying ordes! That bicycle firms and tyre companies should encourage these young women to strain themselves and probably permanently injure their health is little short of scandalous. Do the public buy the machine or the tyre because of it? I think not.

MADAME,

I have seen some very lovely under-clothing lately. The styles are very elaborate, but one can easily make them on simpler lines. The great point is to have a good pattern and to choose the make most becoming to one's figure. Lace is pretty, but if Valenciennes is used unless it is nar-row it is very liable to tear. Carchon or guipure lace is really the most ser-viceable.

or guipure lace is really the most serviceable.

I do not like elaborate embroidery, but the narrow embroidery used as an edge to a frill is rather pretty, and washes well. Night dresses are now made with very large revers and a tucked front or chemisette—or a wide tucked yoke may be worn with frill, etriped with insertion edging the yoke. The sleeves are much frilled, and rather full vandyked frills are most fashionable for all underclotting, including dressing jackets and petticoats. Quite a new idea in petticoats, and one which seems to suggest full ekirts, are those made with 3 deep flounces overlapping each other.

The flounces nearest to the waist

The flounces nearest to the waist have very little fulness, but the 2 next ones get gradually more ample in proportion. This idea also indicates that everything will be more or less flounced. Mantles and skirts will be flounced and frilled.

Some very pretty dressing jackets are made of pale blue or pink cashmere, trimmed with needle-run lace. Velveteen will be greatly in favour for tea jackets, with revers and front or pale coloured or vivid broché silks, trimmed with an edge of fur, insertion, or jet. Short mantles are composed of 2 deep frills of a bright glace silk, striped lengthwise with narrow velvet ribbons. Another very old fashion revived are the "lozenges" of velvet, edged with marrow lace, used to trim shot-broché silk dresses.

There is a curious quaintness about the newest fashions which the eye has not yet become accustomed to, but this sense of strangeness is always one of the features of our dress at the beginning of every season. The choice of material is of some importance when buying winter clothing. The safest are the fine woollen goods—in full warm tints of old rose, ruby, plum, or golden brown; they must not be too heavy. Next come serge, cashmere, and cloth. Checks are fitted only for tall, alender women.

Rough, hard materials are disagree-

Rough, hard materials are disagreeable to gight and touch; they make ugly bodices and stiff skirts. Green is the suitable colouring for blondes who are over burdened with colour in their faces. Navy blue is suitable to all. Black is the most unbecoming colour any woman past 30 can wear.

The foot of the skirt is trim-made in cotton or a light woollen material. The square neck and half-length sleeves are trimmed with shand of feru guipure insertion over a bright red satin ribbon. The neck may be filled in with a chemisett or tucker of red surah finely tucked.

ADVANCE OF THE AFRIDIS ON INDIA.
There is bad news from India. Last week there was supplicion, or something more, that the Ameer of Afghanistan was secretly encouraging the rebellious tribes along the North-west frontier in their efforts to throw of the yoke of the Ferringhia. This week the Ameer himself replied to the protest of the Indian Government, and strongly reprimanded those who had in any way countenanced the rising.
But—whether encouraged by the Ameer or not—the "Mad Mullah" still continues to proclaim the jehad, the century and equivalent of the orus-

The latest official despatches received from India tend to show that matters are assuming a somewhat ally wounded, dying in a few minutes. The following account of a remarkative are assuming a somewhat required to the trouble with the frontier tribes. Competent Indian authorities point out that in consequence of the rapidity with which reinforcements can now be despatched by rail to the front no anxiety whatever need to felt as to our capability of speedily dealing with every hostile attack on the part of the enemy. The news that the Afridis have risen is certainly disquisting, as they are good fighters, and far more formidable than the Oraksais tribes. The latest news, however, throws some doubt upon their intentions. These native warriors are really only formidable in the hills, and would never be able to sand against our cavalry in the plains. They, moreover, rely principally upon aurprise attacks, and, if they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has more apadily than they fail in these, past experience has mattive aftacks. Roberts has given his views of the rising. He said he was satisfied that there is no serious danger to be appresented from the rising. There is no cause for alarm. The whole movement is a fanatical one on the part of the Mahomedan tribes and he had no doubt that the troops would be able to cope with any difficulties which may arise. As to the position of the Almeer, Lord Roberts said:—"I wish I could think that the Ameer of Afghan istan had nothing to say to the present disturbance, but knowing the constant had nothing to say to the present disturbance, but knowing the control he has over his country my belief is that not one of his own immediate subjects on the borderland who over all the control he has over his country my belief is that not one of his own immediate subjects on the borderland who over all the control he has over his country my belief is that not one of his own immediate subjects on the borderland who over all the control he had not here to have a subject to the control he had not have the control had not have the control had not have the control he had not have the control had not have the Already the Indian Government has set the troops to work to restore order, and teach the threamen one of the severe periodical lessons which punctuate that chapter of history of our Indian empire. The Indian Army is used to the tester prepared for it at the present time than it has ever been before. There will be no difficulty, if the need should arize, in throwing an amply sufficient force upon different points; and the ultimate suppression of the rising is not, for a moment, in doubt. No no e, therefore, need imagine that our Empire in Hindostan is in danger. The canses of the sudden growth of the fantical ferment among the tribes are not obscure. We may dismiss the notion, which at first obtained some credence, that the Ameer of Afghanistan is a shifty potentate, no doubt, and in his heart of hearts he has, we may take it for granted, but it the lower of the Indian Government in a contest which cannot be successful, and in which success would do him no good if it were attained of The Ministers held a metallic month of the Creaming of allowed the propert of the Indian Government in a contest which cannot be successful, and in which success would do him no good if it were attained. The houses are 2 storeys high, with small gardens in front, and they are occupied generally by the artisan classes. At 236 there lived 2 families, the one being a man named Francis, with his wife and shild, and the other a married man who is said to be in Government employ. Francis is said to be a labourer, and he and his wife and child occupied rooms on the first floor. Mr. and Mrs. Francis were looked upon by their neighbours as quiet and respectable people. Mrs. Francis was last esen on Thursday afternoon, and the husband at a later hour of the day. From that time nothing had been heard of either of the persons until last evaning about 10 c'clock. Joseph Robinson, who murdered his wife at Monk Bretton, near Barnsley, and Walter Robinson, who murdered his cousin, Sarah Flekles, at Thornton, near Bradford, were executed in Armley Gaol, Leeds, this week.— Joseph Robinson and his wife had for 8 years lived very unhappity, and had several times separated. The murder was committed whist deceased was staying with a family named Marshall as Monk Bretton. Robinson broke into the house and shot his wife, who attempted to escape. Robinson fired again, however, and the woman fell dead on the threshold.—The Thornton murder, for which Walter Robinson was executed, was remarkable for the cool and callous conduct of the murderer. Ho had been

ADULTERATED MILK.

SEE J. SEIDON FOURME AS SPECIAL

At Bow-st., Daniel McCarthy, Newton-st., appeared to a summons, charging him with selling milk from which at least 24 per cent. of fat had been extracted. Air. H. C. Jones supported the summons on behalf of the St.
Giles's Board of Works.—The sale was prowed by Insp. Bond, and the analyst's certificate was put in.—The defendant said that he was us in a very small way of business, only taking 5 quarts of milk a day. The people from whom he bought had 20 or 30 customers, and it might be that he was served after most of the cream had been taken from the top.—Sir J.
Bridge said that it was easy for persons to suppose that fat had been extracted from milk when nothing of the hind had been done. The absence of the normal quantity of fat might be accounted for in many ways—the weather, had pasturage, or

THE CONDITION OF THE COWS:
Or, again, when milk had been standing, the cream might have risen to stomers. Defendant was in a very all way of business, and the sums would be dismissed.—Mr. Jones, of the sums would be dismissed.—Mr. Jones, of that he must beg that this deiton should be reconsidered, as, if it re allowed to stand, it would parase the efforts of the local authorities prevent the sale of impure or nmitk. No evidence had been lided to rebut the charge.—Sir John did that he was not satisfied that fat and been extracted.—Mr. Jones noted several rulings in support of a case, among others, that in the see of Harrison and Richards, in hich it was ruled that in the she of the sums of the sum of the sums of the sum of

A lot of cricket was got through at Ports to the count on a wicket that for the most part assisted the bowiers, but the time lost on Yriday owing to the heavy rain could not be easie up, and in the end the result was a raw. On the opening day liampshire soured 68, while Sussex lost one wicket for 20 runs. The Sussex batting at the outset was disappointing, some of the most trusted run. HAMPSHIRE v. SUSSEX
